New Edition of Tariff Encyclopedia

"PROTECTIVE TARIFF CYCLOPEDIA" Document No. 33 of one hundred and sixty pages, revised to July 1, 1918, has just been issued by The American Protective Tariff League, New York. It includes over seven thousand citations and comparisons of rates of duty between the Payne-Aldrich Law of 1909 and the Underwood Law of 1913, as amended. Two very interesting chapters have been added to this brochure entitled "What Free Trade Has Done, 1913-1917" and "Oriental Competition." The last chapter points clearly to the menace of importations from the Orient, present and future.

HERO IN 2 WARS

Serg. Major John Henry Quick, of the U. S. Marines, who has been cited for bravery by General Pershing for taking a truck load of ammunition into Bourdeaux, near Chateau Thierry, over a road swept by artillery and machine gun fire, was a hero of the war of 1898. He was awarded the Congressional medal of honor for his conduct in fighting at Cuzco, Cuba, in June, 1898. Quick stood against the sky on a hill with his back to the enemy, bullets cutting all about him, and signalled firing direction to the cruiser Dolphin.

To The Trade

In order to help our government in winning the war and to release man power to assist in productive occupations, we will, beginning August 1st, make no deliveries of groceries on orders less than $2.50.

Cash Grocery Company

CASH AND CARRY To The Public: Let Us Help Win The War

Being unable to secure competent help, and release man power to put the Kaiser out of business, we have decided, that beginning, August 1, 1918 we will make no deliveries and extend credit to no one during the duration of the war.

All prices will be based on cash and carry plan, and we trust you will cooperate with us in this movement, and that we will be in a position to save you the difference between credit and delivery prices and cash and carry plan. Thanking you for past favors, and hoping for your continued patronage, we are yours respectfully,

WASHINGTON NEWS GOSSIP

By CHARLES BROOKS SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—Although they had only been in camp three days, several hundred rookies from the big shipment of draftees made to Camp Meade, Md., from West Virginia last week, were favored with short furloughs which permitted them to spend Saturday night and Sunday with friends and seeing the sights of Washington. There are over 5,000 West Virginia boys at Meade now.

Albert Angelo, who got his call when he was back at his old home in Morgantown, said the drafted men came with were generously kitted by 10 girls at Cumberland, 3 at Keyser and 2 at Martinsburg. He is anxious to be drafted again and to come by the same route so as to give the Keyser and Martinsburg girls a chance to retrieve their poor osculatory record.

Father and son, both soused, came in to Meade late last night with four other tipsy casualties from the white light section of New York, and all were given a hearty welcome in spite of the fact that they were a few hours later than the others from the same New York board. No one discovered that "good old Dad," who had been the host to a lively party at a Baltimore hotel, was in the party. He was given a cot and tumbled in for the night along with the others.

In the morning at 3:45 all five were still cheerful. Dad fell in line for breakfast, and then marched along and took his typhoid inoculation with the rest, without complaint and without arousing suspicion, for the doctors are handling men by the hundred and all must take the needle.

When the man of the party began to tell what a good sport the old fellow was a noncom officer looked into the matter. Capt. Longstreth was then consulted, and he called out father and son for an account of their adventures. Dad said he was perfectly willing to go as far as he could with his boy.

This is the first time that a father has passed off for a rookie at Meade, although there have been cases of younger brothers trying to get in by merely coming along with the others.

MRS. BELLE DRAY LACKED NERVE FORCE, SHE SAYS

But That Was Before Nerv-Worth Came to the Rescue Made Over Her Health.

The rescue was needed and the blessings it brought were enough to enthrall Mrs. Dray. This is what she said to Lima's Nerv-Worth druggist: Butler's Drug Store—For more than a year I have been in a terribly nervous condition. Could not sleep but tossed around the bed all night. My stomach and digestion in bad shape. Did not have the nerve force to properly digest my food. Lost weight and was very weak and in a run down condition.

I took one bottle of Nerv-Worth and now I CAN SLEEP THE WHOLE NIGHT THROUGH. My stomach and digestion are fine. No more nervousness and am gaining in weight and strength. I certainly recommend Nerv-Worth to all women.

MRS. BELLE DRAY, 133 N. Central Ave., Lima, O. Your dollar back at Crane's drug store, Fairmont, if Nerv-Worth does not do for you what it did for Mrs. Dray.

Among today's arrivals from West Virginia are Judge Frank Cox, of Morgantown; Robert Morris, of Clarksburg, and Capt. Francis Thralls, of Fairmont.

Sergt. Maj. William E. Geary has made the supreme sacrifice somewhere in France. He was a Harper's Ferry boy, born and reared to young manhood there. He was well known in Washington where, in recent years, his mother and sister have been prominently identified with the woman's suffrage movement.

The story of how Sergt. Maj. William E. Geary met his death should be an inspiration to courage and devotion to duty for the youth of America. Though it occurred June 25 the censorship did not permit Junius B. Wood, the newspaper correspondent, to tell about it until now. Geary had been attached to the brigade headquarters three miles behind the Bois de Belleau when the bloody struggle was going on for its possession.

"He was slated for a commission as second lieutenant," Mr. Wood cables his papers, "but considered that he would not deserve it unless he took an active part in the fighting where his comrades were risking their lives. The general, unable to spare him from important work at headquarters, refused him permission. Geary searched around and got another man to take his place. The general was no longer able to refuse him permission to go forward into the fiery furnace."

"After luncheon he started forward alone and reached the battalion headquarters of Maj. M. E. Shearer, of Indianapolis, at a most critical moment of the attack and word had just come that a company was in danger of a flank attack from an enemy machine gun detachment."

"Geary appeared to be cool and constant when everybody was perspiring, excited and apprehensive of the result," said Capt. Henry Larson, of Chicago. "He said he was going forward to join the company. I advised him to wait as it was in the midst of a fight. When it is quiet go up, I can't spare a runner to guide you now. I'll find them all right and may be able to help them at a time when they need me," said Geary, continuing through the woods as if shells and bullets were not flying on every hand.

"That was the last seen of him alive. An hour later when the company had been successful in its attack he had disappeared. Search was made and nine days later his body was found where he had been killed instantly by a shell."

Within the sound and range of the German guns, hidden by the sheltering trees of a dense forest, in a heavy morning mist and a drizzling rain, French veterans of Verdun, the Marne, the Aisne, and the Somme honored their younger comrades of America by conferring upon them the Croix de Guerre. Correspondence from the United States corps, released today for publication, tells of 30 marines, five officers and twenty-five non-commissioned officers and privates, who received this coveted French decoration for gallant conduct, and coolness in action against the enemy during the occupation of a sector by the marine brigade.

One of the thirty was a West Virginia boy—Thomas M. Underwood, of Fairview.

He was one of thirteen cited, as follows: "Wounded in the course of a lively night attack of the enemy. Courageously remained at their combat post, continuing to fire and displaying heroic courage, finally forcing the enemy to withdraw" (although these men were wounded, some of the were wounded only slightly, and were present at the ceremonies).

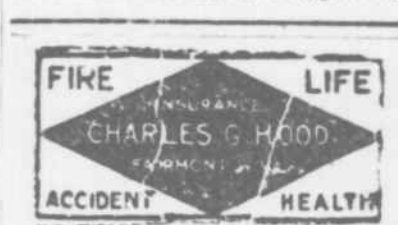

The Postoffice department has issued an order discontinuing the post offices at Donwood, Kanawha county; Hams Creek, Monroe county, and Prentiss, Webster county, and has issued postmasters' commissions to John W.

Burgess at Taplin, W. Va., Conrad being a newly established office in Fayette county; orders discontinuing offices at Attenville, Lincoln county, and Hamlet, Fayette county, have been rescinded.

Miss Virginia Brent, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Hiffin here, will return to her home in Clarksburg today. Miss Brent came to Washington from Richmond, where she had been visiting a few weeks.

The Solicitor General and Mrs. John W. Davis have gone to visit the Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing at the summer home of the Lansings at Henderson Harbor, N. Y.

Congressman Harry C. Woodyard will leave for his home at Spencer this week and will remain there to vote at the primary on August 6th. Congressman Stuart F. Reed and Senator Sutherland will also go to their respective homes to cast their votes. The other members of the delegation are out of Washington at the present and will not return here until after August 6th.

FUNERAL OF MRS. WILSON.
Funeral services over the body of Mrs. Benjamin S. Wilson whose death occurred on Monday at her home at Harrakville, were held this morning from the Monumental church near Harrakville and were largely attended by relatives and friends. The services were conducted by the Rev. Cochran. Following the services at the church the body was interred in the cemetery nearby by Funeral Director R. L. Jones.

Prominent Republicans Endorse Jos. H. Gaines AN OPEN LETTER

To the Republican Voters of West Virginia:

The undersigned Republicans and citizens of West Virginia wish to commend to your consideration the candidacy for United States Senator of Hon. Joseph H. Gaines, of Kanawha county.

We believe that in the day of reconstruction, that must follow this great war, we will need in the United States Senate men of the purest patriotism and the broadest legislative experience; men of the highest intellectual ability and the greatest moral courage. We believe that Joseph H. Gaines possesses all of these high qualities in a special measure; and, at this time, he is, of all men, the one man best fitted to represent the great agricultural, commercial, labor and manufacturing interests of this State in the United States Senate.

During his service in the House of Representatives, Joseph H. Gaines held a very high place on the Ways and Means Committee, and became a recognized authority on the tariff question, and experienced business men pronounced him the best informed man on that subject at Washington. Ex-Speaker Cannon described his address on the floor of the House as "the best tariff argument made in Washington for years."

As Republicans, we believe in the policy of protection.

West Virginia, in particular, is a protective tariff State. The prosperity of her great interests, in time of peace, rests on a wisely adjusted protective tariff law.

On the wise adjustment of tariff conditions after the war may depend the activity of great industries, and the employment of many thousands of our fellow citizens; and we believe that Joseph H. Gaines is better fitted than any other man in West Virginia to protect our claims to protect the interests of all classes of West Virginia while that readjustment is being made.

As citizens of Northern West Virginia, some of us employers of labor all of us deeply interested in the welfare of our State, we have to selfish, personal interest in endorsing Mr. Gaines. He comes from a distant section; from a community widely separated from us, in some respects, different in character. Ordinarily we might prefer for public honor a man from among our own citizenship; or, at least one of our neighbors.

But, we believe that the Republican party in West Virginia faces a great crisis. We believe that our country demands of us our best leadership and our highest character. A great party must prove its right to public confidence by putting forward men who most truly represent its best thought. At this time, we believe that Joseph H. Gaines in his person combines in a greater degree, than any other, the highest ideals and purposes of our party. We pledge him our earnest support, and we appeal to the Republican voters of West Virginia to nominate and elect him to the United States Senate.
